FRENCH BREAK DOWN VIOLENT COUNTER ATTACK NEAR RHEIMS; WHILE ARMIES RETREAT KAISER LAUNCHES PEACE OFFENSIVE

ALLIED ADVANCE CONTINUES STEADILY EACH DAY DESPITE DESPERATELY BATTLING HUNS

Night is Marked by More Than Ordinary Artillery Activity; Clouds Disappear and Flocks of Air Observers Soar Aloft; New New German Peace Feeler Terms Modified but Still Show Huns Wanting Much of World.

CONFERENCE TO SETTLE BELGIUM'S FATE, PLAN

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The advance of the Allied and American forces around the Aisne-Marne salient has been practically steady for the last two days General March, chief of staff said today, despite the fact that 15 fresh divisions of German troops have been thrown into the fighting at Soissons and on the line south.

The Germans are fighting desperately to retain the single railway line remaining in their hands, over which heavy material can be moved as they retreat, General March said.

If that railway, running from Fismes to Fere-en-Tardenois, is reached by the Allied troops, General March said, German forces remaining in the salient will be pocketed.

On the Rheims side of the salient official reports show the enemy has been thrown back an average distance of a mile and a half on a ten-mile front. The area lost by the Germans during the last week, the General said, about equals that gained by them on the Flanders front in April.

AMERICANS PRESS ON.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE-MARNE FRONT, July 24, 12.50 P. M.—Along the line north of Chateau Thierry the Franco-American forces have driven the Germans out.

The Allied advance was made in considerable jumps, the Germans continuing their rear guard fighting and depending upon their machine guns.

Further to the west the Americans gained the ascendency over the Germans and drove through and beyond the town of Epieds.

The Germans have been unable to halt the movement towards their line of supplies.

American cavalry was used at one point in the operation north of the Chateau Thierry line.

CLAIMS AMERICAN PRISONERS.

AMSTERDAM, July 24.—Americans lost heavily in the fighting at Epieds on July 22, according to the Wolff Bureau correspondent. Eight American officers and 130 men were taken prisoners, he adds.

FRENCH HOLD FAST.

PARIS, July 24.—The Germans last night delivered a counter attack upon the Allied lines in the vicinity of Vrigny, five miles southwest of Rheims. The war office announced today that the attack had been routed.

There was great activity by the artillery during the night along the front between the Aisne and the Marne and northeast toward Rheims. The text of the statement follows:

"The night was marked by great artillery activity between the Marne and the Aisne and in the Courton and Rol woods in the Rheims sector.

"At 9 o'clock last night the Germans launched a counter attack west of Rheims, in the region of Vrigny. French troops broke all assaults and held their positions intact."

WEATHER CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES ON THE AISNE-MARNE FRONT, July 24, 7:30 A. M.—The French, British and Americans are still hammering the flanks of the crown prince's army. The Germans are known to have brought up fresh support forces at some points but the Allies report the situation as favorable.

More favorable weather conditions brought out flocks of aircraft this morning. The day, an excellent one for observation, is expected to change the character of the fighting, especially with regard to the artillery. The change for the better in weather conditions took place during the night when the clouds disappeared and the wind died down. Scarcely a dust cloud could be seen this morning on any part of the widespread battlefield with the exception of the spurts rising from the thousands of craters made by the guns on both sides.

MIND SOMEWHAT CHANGED.

AMSTERDAM, July 24.—Germany has made suggestions for a peace conference to the Spanish government, says the Socialist Vorwaerts of Berlin.

The suggestions are:

First—Germany wants no annexation or indemnities in the West.

Second—The peace treaties with Russia and Rumania may not be questioned.

Third—The principle of self-determination of peoples has not been discussed but may be settled at the peace conference where the fate of Belgium also is to be settled.

Fourth—The Balkan question is to be settled around the conference table.

Fifth—The freedom of the seas, the dismantling of Gibraltar and the Suez canal and the right for Germany to use coaling stations.

Sixth—The Colonial question is to be settled on the basis of the status quo.

The Vorwaerts considers this a very reasonable peace proposal.

YANKEES STILL CHASE RETREATING HUNS.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Continued pursuit of the retreating enemy south of the river Ourcq is reported in General Pershing's communique for yesterday received today at the War Department. The capture of positions north of the Marne also is reported.

TWENTY KILLED, REPORT BY PRESIDENT SHOWS.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Army casualty list today shows: killed, 20; died of wounds, 14; died of disease, 17; died of accidents and other causes, 5; died of airplane accidents, 2; wounded severely, 46; prisoner, 1; missing, 1; total, 106.

NEW WORK OR FIGHT ORDER MAY BRING RECRUITS TO MINES

Very Material Extension of Its Terms to Be Made Within Few Months.

MANY VOCATIONS NAMED

As Unfit Occupations for Young Men of Military Age; Production of Coal Will Entitle Those Engaged to Exemption or Deferred Classification.

Enlargement of the scope of the "Work or Fight" order of the government to reach all men of military draft age who are now engaged in occupations that are not contributing in an essential way to winning the war will take place in a series of official orders that will be issued by Provost Marshal General Crowder within the next few months. The first of these orders will be given out within a few days, it is stated, and in its terms will be an extension of the recent "Work or Fight" edict which caused several hundred thousand men to change their employment to necessary industries.

As now contemplated, every man of draft age must before the first of the year, at least, obtain employment in an occupation that is classed by the War Industries Board as essential to winning the war, or have an exemption or deferred classification withdrawn from him.

Among the vocations that are specifically under consideration by General Crowder as unfit occupations by young men of military age in time of war are these: Practice of law by young lawyers who have not yet established themselves, or hold positions as clerks in law offices; bill collectors, ordinary bookkeepers, and similar vocations that can be filled by older men, or by women; real estate and insurance agents, solicitors and investment and security salesmen; traveling salesmen, and clerks and assistants in educational, charitable and religious institutions.

Other non-essential jobs are those of clerks, stenographer and minor officials in the offices and counting rooms of non-essential firms and enterprises; professional directors of corporations and firms; trustees and managers of estates; officials and managers of sporting and pleasure clubs, associations and corporations; secretaries and managers of enterprises and institutions whose connections are perfunctory or ornamental, and men of fixed income and no regular occupation.

Another line of workers who may come under the ban, according to draft officials' opinions, are barbers, window washers, tailors conducting pressing and cleaning establishments, workers in job printing shops, paper hangers, sextons and janitors, and "door-bell ringers."

Among the essential industries in which these men may engage and retain their exemption or deferred classification, as now contemplated,

BREAK CAR WINDOWS

Allegheny County Draftees Do Not Bother With Raising Them.

Draftees from Allegheny county on the special train which carried Connellsville men to Camp Lee last night did not bother about raising the windows when the train pulled into the station here. Unable to get them high enough to lean out, the men put their fists through the glass and broke out the fragments. Almost every window in some of the cars was broken.

One draftee, who had severed an artery in some manner, had his wound dressed by a local physician when the train arrived here.

LIGHTLESS NIGHT REGULATIONS IN EFFECT TONIGHT

Rules Governing Illumination More Drastic Than Before.

WINDOWS MUST BE DARK

Fuel Administration Order Interpreted to Mean That No Lighting Is Permitted in Any During Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

"Lightless Nights," with restrictions somewhat more drastic than those which prevailed last winter, go into effect tonight throughout the country. George S. Connell, secretary of the Fayette County Fuel committee, whose jurisdiction within the county includes Connellsville and surrounding territory, today announced the regulations which will apply to communities in Pennsylvania.

There will be four "Lightless Nights" a week, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Last year Thursday and Sunday were lightless. The use of light "generated or produced by the use or consumption of coal, gas, oil or other fuel" is prohibited for illuminating or display advertisements or for the external ornamentation of any building. A further provision is that no light shall be used for illuminating or displaying any shop window between the hours of sunrise and sunset on nights which are not "lightless."

According to interpretation placed upon this ruling, the lightless night order, in brief, is that on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, all outside illumination, other than street lights, shall be eliminated, and that all display windows must remain dark. On the nights not covered by this order, shop windows may be illuminated after sunset.

The lightless night ruling of last year permitted merchants to illuminate their shop windows on Thursday and Sunday nights, providing their stores were open. The new ruling covering the first four nights of each week provides that illumination of display windows is not to be permitted, regardless of whether the store in question is open or closed.

That portion of the "lightless night" order covering this point is herewith given in full:

"The use of light generated or produced by the use of consumption of coal, gas, oil or other fuel for illuminating or displaying advertisements, announcements or signs, or for the external ornamentation of any building, shall be entirely discontinued on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday of each week within New England and the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia, and shall be entirely discontinued on Monday and Tuesday of each week in all the remainder of the United States.

"The use of light generated or produced by the use or consumption of fuel for illuminating or displaying any shop window, store window or any signs in show windows shall be discontinued from sunrise to sunset and shall also be discontinued on the nights specified in the above paragraph."

COURT DECLINES TO APPROVE BIG COMMISSION BILL

Claims For Vast Sums In Thompson-Frick Transfer Disallowed.

STOCK SALE IS ORDERED

Orders Affecting Interests of Former Uniontown Banker Handed Down in Federal Court in Pittsburg; Creditors Are Protected By the Court.

Judge W. H. S. Thomson, in the United States District court in Pittsburg, yesterday handed down an opinion in which he refused to affirm the distribution of $168,788.26 among the referee, trustees and attorneys in the J. V. Thompson bankruptcy case as fees and commissions in the recent sale to the H. C. Frick Coke company of 7,500 acres of coal land owned by Thompson in Greene county.

Shortly afterward, Judge Charles P. Orr handed down an opinion in which he ordered the sale of 3,000 shares of stock of the Liberty Coal company and 7,000 shares of the capital stock of the Wetzel Coal and Coke company, also owned by Thompson and deposited with Comptroler of the Currency John Skelton Williams to secure Thompson's indebtedness to the First National Bank of Uniontown.

This indebtedness approximates $800,000 and the stock is reputed to be worth $1,700,000. Judge Orr ordered that a master be appointed as quickly as possible and the sale consummated. He said that the distribution of the proceeds would be decided upon after the sale had been completed.

Judge Thomson in his opinion set out the following summary submitted by the trustees, referees and attorneys for fees and commissions:

Trustees commissions	$37,541.93
Referee's commission	36,098.33
Counsel fees	68,148.00
Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall	25,000.00
Total	$166,788.26

The referee in his order, recently filed, cut down the attorneys' fees from $68,148 to $50,000 and disavowed the claim of 25,000 attorneys' fees asked by the Guggenheim, Untermyer & Marshall of New York. As a result, the case was brought to the attention of the court by the attorneys to have a settlement made as to the question of fees and commissions.

The property in question consists of approximately 7,500 acres of coal lands in Greene county which was sold to the Frick interests for $3,627,846.

Judge Thomson in his opinion stated that the court could not affirm the fees and commission charges

William Myers, colored, was given four days street work or 10 days in a cell by Mayor John Duggan this morning. The soldiers declared they would shoot the negro if they caught him and when Turner ran across him on West Crawford avenue he placed the man under arrest.

Mary Miller, arrested for drunkeness, had her sentence suspended on complaining of illness. Mayor Duggan warned her that a trip to the county jail would be the result of her next offense.

GREAT WHITE STAR LINER JUSTICIA IS SENT TO BOTTOM

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 24.—The White Star liner Justicia has been sunk.

AN IRISH PORT, Monday, July 22.—The giant White Star liner Justicia has been torpedoed and sank. It is believed no loss of life occurred.

The Justicia was formerly the Dutch steamer Statendam which was taken over by the British government on the stocks at Belfast when she was nearing completion. She was a vessel of 32,234 tons gross.

The Justicia in size and tonnage nearly approached the dimensions of the great steamship Vaterland, now in the service of the American government and being used for a carrier of American troops to Europe. She was designed as a modern passenger liner for the trade between New York and Rotterdam but she never entered that service. After being completed at Belfast the Cunard Steamship company turned the Justicia over to the British admiralty and it was used as a transport of troops and supplies. The Justicia was 740 feet long, 86 feet beam and 43 feet deep.

LONDON, July 24.—The White Star liner Justicia, says a Belfast dispatch today, was sunk off the North Irish coast on Saturday morning last.

The Justicia carried a crew of between 600 and 700. Eleven members of the crew are dead.

One of the crew of the Justicia is quoted by the newspaper as asserting that 10 torpedoes were discharged at the Justicia. Four of the approaching missles, he added, were exploded by gunfire from the ship.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Justicia, reported sunk apparently off the coast of Ireland, was returning to an American port after delivering a large contingent of American troops, it was learned here. The vessel had a troop carrying capacity of between 7,000 and 8,000 men. Her crew numbered about 500.

GREEK MUST SERVE

Absence of Uniontown Man in Army Abroad Not Exemption Grounds.

Judge E. H. Reppert yesterday handed down an opinion denying exemption from military service to George Karros, a Greek of Uniontown, who served a year in the Greek army between the time of making application for his first and second naturalization papers.

The Greek contended that absence in the Greek army after taking out the first papers made him an alien. The court ruled that he must answer the call of the draft.

Threatened Rain Does Not Deter People in Least.

WOMAN FAINTS IN CROWD

Is Carried to Freight Station and Given First Aid.

TRAIN LAYS OVER AN HOUR

Thousands Linger About Until it Finally Disappears From View; Company G, Reserve Militia, Firemen and Others Act as Escort to Train.

One of the largest crowds that ever gathered at a station to bid farewell to soldiers going into training thronged the platform of the station of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad here last night and stood for over an hour in the intense heat until the special train pulled out.

In the dense crowd it was extremely hot and one woman collapsed. She was carried into the Baltimore & Ohio freight office and revived.

In spite of threatening rain hundreds of persons went to the South Side during the evening to see the draftees before they left the armory. The streets along the entire route to the station were crowded and the spectators followed the procession to the train. Although the special pulled in to the station on schedule time, it was more than an hour late before it finally left. The thousands of persons at the station remained, however, until the last coach faded into the darkness.

Local Boards Nos. 2 and 5 sent a total of 71 men, No. 2 sending 35 and No. 5, 36. All were supplied with Red Cross outfits and a lunch prepared by the canteen committee.

The draftees reported at the armory and marched to the station, escorted by the Connellsville Military band, Company G, Pennsylvania Reserve Militia, council, Boy Scouts, Italian band, West Side and South Connellsville volunteer firemen, and the Kurtz drum corps. The parade was of considerable length. All but five members of Company G were present. There were only a few Boy Scouts in line, many of them being in camp in the Indian creek valley.

While the Connellsville Military band played one of the draftees from Allegheny county who was aboard the special sang, receiving much applause. The Italian band also played several numbers.

are shipbuilding, the operation and maintenance of railroad lines, the production of coal, coke and oil, munitions, projectiles, and military and naval supplies, agricultural work and food canning.

One of the moves in this direction is the decision of Secretary of War Baker that baseball is a non-essential occupation; that exemption or deferred classification cannot be given to ball players because of their occupation, or on grounds of their dependents while so employed.

A thorough inquiry into the duties and functions of various jobs and positions of high and low-sounding titles that are held by men of military age is in progress by the Provost Marshal General, and is aimed especially at the "special experts" "efficiency directors" who have been appointed since the issuance of the first "Work or Fight" order in May.

One of the results coming from the first order was the saving of the 950,000,000-bushel wheat crop in the United States with comparatively no loss. Previous to the order the Food Administration expected heavy loss in the harvest because of the shortage of harvest workers.

The time is approaching, it is stated at the Provost Marshal General's office, when each man of military age who does not have essential employment from the standpoint of the war, will be deprived of his exemptions and deferred classification, and sent to the front as a soldier.

COURT DECLINES TO APPROVE BIG COMMISSION BILL

because the unsecured creditors had not been given the right or opportunity to be heard on the matter. He said it appeared from the referee's report that the lien creditors had been provided for and the rest of the funds taken over as fees without due regard for the unsecured creditors.

The opinion reads in part:—

"The unsecured creditors have a right to be heard on the question whether fees and commissions aggregating so large an amount shall be paid from this sale, particularly because it appears by the referee's report that the unsecured creditors are so situated that they may get nothing unless there is reasonable economy in the administration of the estate.

"On this question they are not before the court and have not been heard.

"Under these circumstances the appropriation of large amounts by the way of compensation through the schedule filed and the referee's report thereon, was premature. We are not passing upon the merits of the case. That will be done when the account is filed, if the creditors after due consideration object to the claims so made."

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, July 24.—One of the largest gatherings that has yet paid honor to departing soldiers, assembled last evening at the Y. M. C. A. to bid goodbye to 21 men bound for Camp Lee from District No. 7, Westmoreland county. The draftees gathered at the Y. M. C. A. at 7.30 o'clock and each man received a nice lunch packed by Miss Kate Livengood and committee. At 8 o'clock they were taken in automobiles to the Baltimore & Ohio depot at Everson where they board the train. Those who went were: William Grugg, Mount Pleasant; Norman Miller, Stauffer; Daniel F. Ritenour, Scottdale; Stephen F. Tuchush, Tarr; Charles East, Scottdale; Emilo Rocco, Scottdale; August Kulzak, Scottdale; John E. Hill, Scottdale; John F. How They Raised Money.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. held an experience social at the home of Mrs. T. I. Dick last evening. Each of the ladies present was asked to tell how she had earned the money turned in to the treasurer. Some told how they had sold the eggs, another had baked bread, one woman pressed her husband's trousers. The next woman very proudly said she did not press trousers, but that her husband's trousers had pockets and she had found them. At this a maiden lady arose and said she had no husband to have pockets but she was thankful she still had pockets left herself and there was where her money had come from. Others borrowed the money, some not intending to pay it back and others expecting to earn money to do so. The following program was carried out: Pianologue, Mrs. Fannie Reynolds, assisted by Mrs. George Gordon; reading, Mrs. C. A. Colborn; reading, Mrs. W. F. Stoner; pianologue, Miss L. cile Terbush, assisted by Miss Edna Terbush; reading, Mrs. C. W. Stauffer; reading, Mrs. W. W. Eicher. This was followed by games, a social hour and refreshments.

Phosphorus Strengthens and Vitalizes Every Nerve and Organ of the Human Body

Says Doctor Who Prescribes Ordinary Phosphorated Malt for Weak, Nervous, Rundown, Anaemic People.

Boston, Mass.—Without phosphorus, says Dr. Reid, good health is impossible. Phosphorus strengthens and vitalizes every nerve and organ of the human body. Without it even plants will not grow. More phosphorus is a common need of both men and women, though few realize it. Most of them believe that stomach, liver or kidney trouble, or a lack of iron in the blood is making them sick, weak and unhappy, when all they really need is a little more phosphorus to tone up the nervous system and give strength and vigor to the body. When people come to me nervous and run down and irritable, and everything looks blue, and it seems there is nothing but trouble, trouble, everywhere, I prescribe ordinary phosphorated malt, which not only supplies the phosphorus, but brings malt, one of the best known tonics and tissue builders, to the aid of the wasting tissues. I have seen it double endurance and mental activity in less than ten days' time, and in cases where nothing else had proved to be of real value, I have seen it bring roses to the cheeks of pale, nervous, overworked women, and the crimson blood of health and a smile of happiness to the faces of children recovering from illness of long duration. Recently a patient came to me physically run down and on the verge of mental collapse. He found no pleasure in life, his daily work had become drudgery and he got no rest or recreation from his sports and holidays. He could neither sleep nor keep his mind on his work. I advised him to eat less and take two five-grain tablets of phosphorated malt after meals. In less than ten days he walked into my office full of vim and vigor—his eyes bright, his step firm and buoyant and his manner that of a man of twenty-five though he was well past fifty.

Physicians everywhere know the value of phosphorus and almost every woman knows the tonic value of malt, a remarkable tissue builder, especially adapted to the needs of nursing mothers and weak, anaemic women. Combined with phosphorus and phosphates as in phosphorated malt, it nourishes the body and aids the system to turn food into living tissue. The old liquid forms of malt are inconvenient to take and most of them contain alcohol, which causes a needless stimulation always followed by depressing reaction. Phosphorated malt retains the nutritive properties of malt without the evil effects of alcohol. I have seen it produce such astonishing results that I prescribe it in my practice, recommend it to my friends and take it myself. After a few days of phosphorated malt you awake in the morning feeling refreshed and vigorous and rise ready to begin the day's work with redoubled confidence and energy.

NOTE—To find out what phosphorated malt will do for you get a package and learn for yourself; or ask a friends who has used it; or get the formula from your druggist—it is printed plainly on every package—then ask your doctor. The manufacturers of phosphorated malt have such confidence in it that they guarantee it will double the endurance of weak, nervous, rundown people in ten days' time or the price will be refunded. They insist that all druggists sell it subject to this guarantee. It is dispensed by druggists everywhere and especially in Connellsville by the Laughrey Drug Co., and J. C. Moore.

HER DAUGHTER WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—"For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and telling everybody how much good it has done her."—Mrs. W. D. Wells, 226 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Wells did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, sidesache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

TIME FOR RESULTS; NOT DISCUSSION OF MEANS.

In the wide variety of plans employed by the coke operators to induce their workers to maintain a steady six-day schedule, appeal has been made to almost every motive impelling a man to action. Patriotism, pride in personal achievement, friendly rivalry, self-interest, and different forms of recognition for faithfulness have been urged as incentives. Each of these means has produced certain results. Not as great as had been anticipated and perhaps very much less than was expected from the efforts put forth, but in the aggregate they have accomplished rather more than the operators are disposed to believe. Had not the various methods and means been more or less effective the region would today be producing much less coke than it is doing. With the depletion of the working forces that has been going on steadily since the United States entered the war, without any appreciable recruitment, the natural course of events would have been for production to describe a steadily descending curve. While the total is materially less than a year ago, a computation of output per man on the pay rolls in July, 1918, compared with the output per man on the pay rolls in July, 1917, would show a rather marked increase, and thus provide a concrete measure of the value of all the efforts that have been made not only to keep up but also to increase production.

While there have been a multiplicity of means used, all to the same end, it is noteworthy that patriotism has been the keynote of all the appeals to the men. This has been given many forms, such as securing pledges to stay on the job until the war is won; impressing men with their individual responsibility in helping to carry the war program along without abatement in its growing strength and power, and otherwise awakening them to the supreme needs of the hour. There may have been some disappointment at the progress made by these mildly persuasive efforts, and it would be difficult to pick out any considerable number of men who have been influenced to work steadier as the direct [illegible] in relation to the results in general. It [illegible] have [illegible] military [illegible].

[illegible] no doubt, has been [illegible] the disposal of the [illegible] facility whereby they can prove to themselves that patriotism [illegible] in terms of work, pays and pays big. It is all of this [illegible] where much thought and attention has been given to this phase of the situation, keeping up a high standard of per-man-per-day output has been made as easy as conditions would permit. Thus men who would be uninfluenced by any argument, appeal or reasoning, can be made to see that more work is so manifestly to their material advantage that they are willing to make the little extra effort required of them.

With all the plans, methods, devices, influences and means used to speed up production and insure a larger output per man per day, a certain number of the employes have been persistent in their refusal to take step with their more enlightened, patriotic and willing fellow workers. It having been satisfactorily demonstrated that this class [illegible] cannot be reached through the ordinary [illegible] the Fuel Administration [illegible] upon a plan of [illegible] of which [illegible]. Through the system inaugurated this week the name of every employe who lays off even part of a day is to be reported to the district representative of the Fuel Administration by which the records will be kept. Just what procedure will be followed in the case of persistent absence from the job has not been stated, but the announcement has been made that more drastic measures will be adopted in case the report system does not accomplish the purpose intended.

What these measurs may be is not intimated but there is the possibility that they may lead to the exercise by the government of the unusual powers conferred upon it by the constitution, to be used in times of great national emergency like the present. This, in short, would mean conscription of labor, the fundamental principle of the selective service law being that men, whose service in an industrial occupation is of more value to the nation than their induction into the military service, should be obliged to remain in that occupation with the same degree of fidelity to duty that the soldier is obliged to remain in the ranks.

There has been among the authorities generally, and Congress and the politicians particularly, an indisposition to apply conscription to the industries. It would be regrettable if such a necessity arose, but the winning of the war in the shortest possible space of time being the first consideration, no objection to the employment of any lawful means to that end should have weight with those who are charged, as we all are, with the great responsibilities comprehended in bringing victory to American arms. The time has passed when we can or should split hairs over a discussion of means; the hour is here to secure results. To that end every man, according to his ability, should make his contribution by working or fighting, voluntarily if he will; by compulsion if unwilling.

The latest fashion in market baskets is to carry them in the right hand, filled to capacity, and promenade leisurely but proudly from the curb market through the principal streets to your home.

The garbage business has outlimited the jitney.

It will require but two things to make the curb market a still greater success—more farmers with truck loads of supplies and more buyers with market baskets.

It is reported that the retreating Huns have only 24 miles to go to reach safety. But how about the French and Americans keeping up with Heine while he's making the run?

The Courier's service flag is getting into the smoke of battle but without any of its stars being obscured.

Depend upon the boys of Company D to keep the Huns hustling homeward.

Connellsville and vicinity made another effective contribution last evening to the reasons why Kaiser Bill will sooner or later be obliged to sue for peace.

German Maps and Designs.

Many people, patriotic at heart, still believe Germany had no designs upon America, even though they had conquered Europe. That it would have been better for us to have kept out of the fight, even at the cost of national humiliation.

This story is for them. It is very illuminating.

A prominent business man of Napoleon, Ohio, was in Germany when diplomatic relations were severed by the United States. Vainly he endeavored to get across the border into Switzerland. Every avenue was blocked, even though he was of German parentage. Finally he succeeded in getting an audience with the powers that controlled cases of his kind. He was put through a virtual third degree.

Eventually one of the officials reached down into a desk drawer and drew out a map. "You are from Napoleon, Ohio?" he asked. The Ohioan acquiesced.

"What county is it in, and what are the neighboring towns?"

The Napoleonite named the villages in detail, giving directions from Napoleon as well as distances.

"Humph!" grunted the official. "Right! And do you remember a certain cross roads?" naming it. The Ohioan remembered it.

"What sort of a tree stands there?" was the surprising inquiry.

Fortunately the Ohioan knew that tree. When he gave its variety, instantly the official looked him over, convinced. "You're from Napoleon," he said.

And shortly afterward he was permitted to cross the border.

The point of all this lies here:

Why had Germany maps in such intimate detail of Henry county? And how extensively has her mapping system covered the United States? And what was her purpose in obtaining these maps?

Think it over.

And get ready to make your purchase of Liberty Bonds next October. For if Germany triumphs in Europe we will have to meet her at our own front gates.

Rippling Rhymes

RESTRICTED.

I do not like the sawdust bread I eat three times a day; I'd like a nice white loaf instead—but nothing do I say. I summon up a cheerful grin, a beaming smile, I wot, and push the coarse brown slices in, as though they hit the spot. Our fighting soldiers need the wheat, to keep their strength and heft, and I am thankful I may eat whatever stuff is left. So bring along your wooden loaf, and slice it with a saw; I am no cheap, disloyal oaf, the line at that to draw. I do not like to eat a hen, when I prefer a steak; but lining up with loyal men, no protest do I make. If beef is needed over there, to help suppress the Hun, I'll feed myself on grisly bear, if I can find my gun. The soldiers need the beef and wheat, that Germany may fall; it does not matter what I eat, or if I eat at all. I like some sugar in my tea, I like it on my rice, but Hoover lately said to me, "Make one more sacrifice! If sugar from your board you shoo, you may some Teuton halt." And so I make the fragrant brew, and sweeten it with salt. I'm eating things that I detest, I'm drinking things I hate, and all the time I do my best to keep my smile on straight. With cheerful brow, with queenly grace, obey all rules in sight; the patriot with grouchy face is only half way right.

LETTERS.

If you were three thousand miles from home, you'd look for a letter, too.
You'd hike ten miles when the mail came in to see what had come for you;
Through the lonely days and the lonely nights you'd wait for the moment when They'd call your name in a cheery way and you'd hear from the folks again.

You'd think queer thoughts if they failed to write, you'd fancy they'd ceased to care
And your mind would conjure up evil dreams to worry and taunt you there.
There'd be no joy in the morning sun, no rest on your lonely cot
If once you felt that you were one the home folks had forgot.

Vain will be bullets and guns we make, and vain will be all we do,
If ever that line in France shall lose its faith in the once it knew.
For cannon and shells are but tools to use whenever our soldiers roam.
And their cause is lost if they are not backed by the love of the folks at home.

Letters from home are their hope by day, their dreams through the hours of night,
And the blame is ours if they fail to win, if we shall have failed to write.
So guard their courage and guard their faith and keep up their spirits there
By letting them know when the mail comes in that you haven't ceased to care.

SHOE BARGAIN OPPORTUNITIES
There is a mid-summer cleaning up sale going on in all of our shoe departments. It is a great shoe bargain opportunity; there are shoes for men, shoes for women, shoes for boys, shoes for children, of all ages, and they are real bargains. Naturally in big stocks like our departments carry, we will accumulate some odds and ends, but we never keep them any length of time—clean them up every sixty days, and this is the regular cleaning time. You all know how shoes have advanced in price, and we believe they are going to advance still higher, so even though you do not need these shoes for present use, it would be a good investment to buy them to keep until such time as you will need them. High topped, fancy colors, for women, and misses; good, hard knock-about shoes for boys; fancy shoes of all colors for children and infants; standard dress shoes and standard work shoes for men and boys—it is worth investigating.

HEAVY RAIN FALLS AS MOUNT PLEASANT DRAFTEES MARCH

Section Visited by One of Severest Storms of Season.

MEN SHOW SOLDIERLY QUALITIES

Every One Stays in Line, Though Drenched When They Reach the Railway Station; August 1 Freight Charges System Goes on Cash Basis.

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, July 24.—After threatening rain all day it did not materialize until the draftees were marching to the depot last evening about 7:30 o'clock, then one of the heaviest rains of the summer accompanied by an electrical and wind storm, greeted the boys. Not one of them left the line but all kept straight on for the depot. By the time they reached there all were drenched. One of the largest crowds of people that had gathered to see the draftees off at any time was accompanying the men to the depot. The people took shelter wherever possible with the exception of a faithful few who had friends leaving. They kept up with the parade, being drenched at the end of the line of march.

The parade was headed by the burgess and the Municipal band, another of the bandsmen, Wylie Overly, leaving. Others in line were the Ministerial association, the Militants and various societies.

Forty were sent from here last evening and one was transferred to Toledo, O., making 41 in all. The following is the list: Joseph Shandor, Southwest; Joseph E. Svik, Mount Pleasant; Tony Turriani, Southwest; John Dragovitch, Southwest; Lewis E. Harkins, Mount Pleasant; Michael W. Kearns, Calumet; Walter Rogoznaski, Mount Pleasant; Robert Tezek, Mount Pleasant; Alex C. Johnston, Greensburg R. D.; Joseph E. Showers, Youngstown; Jake Stewart, Youngstown; Franklin G. Must Pay Cash.

Beginning with August 1 the "accommodation list" of freight customers will be a thing of the past. The man shipping carloads out each day and receiving the same will pay as he sends or lifts them with the little man who gets or sends a box. This new ruling has been made by the railroads.

At the Theatres

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE CITY OF TEARS."—A five part Bluebird feature, in which Carmel Myers and Edwin August are seen in interesting roles, is being shown today. The star finds herself a derelict in New York when the opera company in which she sings, closes down. Hungry and friendless, she seeks Union Square as a resting place. How she saves herself from the crimson alternative at the turning of the ways and how she helps others along the high road of a humdrum life is vividly depicted in the production. "The City of Tears" will bring to the sunny corners of plenty the shadows of want. How Rosa Carillo returns good for evil and triumphs over untruth in spite of terrific obstacles is strongly presented. A selected comedy and a Weekly are also being presented. Tomorrow Barbara Castleton and Irving Cummings, two popular World stars, will be presented in "The Love of a Woman," a five part feature of unusual interest. The picture has been very elaborately staged and the climax in the convention is one of the most massive scenes ever erected for a film play. The story deals with the suffrage question as this question relates to the election of the governor of the state. The governor's election depends upon the women's vote and when it is rumored that the governor has been seen in a gambling house his defeat is almost certain until a more startling event takes place. Mr. Cummings appears in the role of the gubernatorial candidate, and Miss Castleton is the girl with whom he has fallen in love.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"HIS MAJESTY, BUNKER BEAN." A Paramount photodrama features Jack Pickford. There is a Bible story saying: "As a man thinketh at heart so is he," and so Jack Pickford, as an insignificant little stenographer, becomes interested in Theosophy, and "learns" that he has been both an emperor and an Egyptian king. So he forthwith begins to impersonate both, but somehow Bunker can understand himself as the king better than as Napoleon whose affairs of the heart he considers rather "raw." While impersonating the king he wins an heiress, makes a fortune in Wall Street and becomes a "regular" man of the world.

HAVE YOU EVER FELT LIKE THIS CHAP?

Have you ever measured yourself for a suit, forwarded your measurements to the mail order tailor along with your money and then tried to measure yourself after the suit arrived? If you have you have probably found yourself diminished even in your own estimation while you have grown still smaller in the vision and estimation of your friends.

The home tailor or clothier is at your service and aiming to merit your confidence and satisfaction. He assures you a fit because he will have you in person while the mail order fellow fits you over a dummy that stands as your likeness in his mail order tailoring plant or sends you a suit that "almost comes up to your measurements." The result is your own discomfort and the jibes of your friends.

MORAL—A poor fit is the best fit for the unfit.

PROMPTNESS in answering the telephone is a mark of courtesy shown the caller. It is also a help to the operator for it enables her to complete the call and to give her attention to others. Promptness in these days of action is most important.

Telephone calls should be answered promptly, for sometimes the calling person does not wait and "hangs up." If this happens the subscriber who has been called should not blame the operator when she asks him to "excuse it, please."

Please answer your telephone promptly and so quicken the service that more calls may be handled by our operators.

One man would trade his whole ration for the next day for a half ration today. That is, if you were so hungry that you thought you could not last out the day on your regular share, you would tell someone else that if he gave you half his share today you would give him all of yours tomorrow. If he was a gambler he would take you up. That is, he would gamble on his being alive tomorrow, not on your keeping your word. He knew you would come across with your ration the next day, and like as not, if you tried to keep it from him, he would kill you, and nobody would blame him.

One Man Would Trade His Whole Ration for the Next Day for Half a Ration Today.

It certainly was hard, when the next day came, to give up your whole ration and go without that day. But I never saw a man hedge, or even speak of it. And we did not have any food pirates among us either: we were not captains of industry by any means.

There were times when some of us could not eat certain of our rations. For instance, many and many a time I was as hungry as anybody could be, and I wanted to eat my bread, but it seemed as if I could not get it into my mouth. Then I would trade it with someone else for his "shadow soup" or his barley coffee.

We were dying every day in Brandenburg and after each death the senior man of that barracks would detail twelve of their number to go out for half an hour and dig the grave, while others made little crosses, on which they wrote or carved the man's name, when he was captured, and his regiment or ship. In the middle of the cross were always the letters, R. I. P.—Rest in Peace.

One time we were ordered to report to the German doctors for a severe treatment of some kind—to receive an injection, in other words. There was no choice about it this time, so we were simply herded together to the hospital barracks. Now, I know what these things were like and how brutal the German doctors were in giving an injection, so I wanted to be the very first man and not have to witness the other men getting theirs.

So I pushed up to the head of the line, with the crew of H. M. S. Nomad, who had been captured in the Jutland battle, and by the time we got to the hospital I was the very first man in line. But the sentry threw me back and there were [illegible] men ahead of me.

Each of them bared his chest and the doctors slashed them across the breast with a very thin knife, so you can see that it was very painful. When it came to my turn they slashed me three times in the shape of a triangle just to one side of the breast. And that was all there was to it—no injection, nothing on the knife that I could see.

Now, I do not know what the idea was. Every one of us was dizzy for the rest of the day and could not do anything but lay around the barracks. And hardly any of us bled a drop, though the gashes were deep. I do not think we had any blood in us to run, and that is the truth of it. It was just another German trick that no one could explain.

One day a war correspondent named Bennett, from a Chicago paper, came to the camp and went through all the barracks. When he came to our barracks I told him I was an American and asked for the news. Instead of answering he began to ask all sorts of questions. Finally, after I had told him I had been in the French service, I asked him if he could help me in any way. He answered that I had only myself to blame and that it served me right if I had been in one of the allied armies.

I did not like his looks much and he seemed unfriendly, but when he began smoking a cigarette it almost drove me crazy and I could not help asking for one. He refused me and said I should have stayed in my own country, where I could have had plenty of cigarettes.

After a while he threw away a cigarette stub and not only I but three or four others who were near made a dive for it. A man named Kelley got it—a crazy man who went around trying to eat wood and cloth and anything he could find.

When my three weeks were up and I had not heard from Mr. Gerard I was just about ready to go down to the lake and pick out a vacant spot and lay down in it. I really do not think I could have lasted two weeks longer. And just about that time, as I was walking back to barracks one day, a Frenchman showed me a German newspaper, and there in large type on the top of the first page it said that Mr. Gerard had left the country, or was getting ready to leave. They had to drag me the rest of the way to the barracks and threw snow on me before I came to.

[Gunner Depew's interview with Mr. Gerard took place at the Dulmen prison camp on or about February 1, 1917. On February 3, our state department demanded the release of sixty-two Americans captured on British vessels and held as prisoners in Germany. On the same day, President Wilson severed diplomatic relations with Germany. Ambassador Gerard left Germany exactly one week later. The newspaper that Gunner Depew saw must have been issued after February 10. It was not until March 9, 1917, however, that Gunner Depew was actually released from Brandenburg.—Editor's Note.]

I do not know what happened during the next few days.

But a week or so later the Spanish ambassador and four German officers and Swattis came to our barracks and the ambassador told me I would be released! It was all I could do to keep from fainting again. Then Swattis asked me in English if I had anything to say about the treatment in the camp, and I began to think maybe it was a frame-up of some kind, so all I said was, "When will I get out of here?" and he said, "Why, you will be released tomorrow."

I did not wait to hear any more, but rushed into the barracks again, singing and whistling and yelling as loud as I could. The boys told me my face was very red and I guess what little blood I had in my body had rushed to my head, because I could hardly walk for a few minutes.

Then the men began to think I was crazy, and none of them believed I would really be released, but that I was going to be sent to the mines, as so many were. But I believed it, and I just sat there on my bunk and began to dream of the food I would get and what I would eat first, and so on.

I did not sleep that night—just walked from barracks to barracks until they chased me away, and then walked up and down in my own barracks the rest of the night. When I got to the Russian barracks and told the two doctors my news, they would not believe me at all, although they knew there had been some important visitor at the camp.

But when I walked out of their door I said, "Dobra vetsbav," which means "Good night!" Then they must have believed me, for they called me back, and all the men gave me addresses of people to write to in case I should get away.

They were all talking at once, and one of the doctors got very excited and got down on his knees with his hands in the air. "Albert," he said, "if you have the God-given luck to get out of Germany—not for my sake, but for the sake of us who are here in this hell-hole, promise me you will tell all the people wherever you go what they are doing to us here. Tell them not to send money, for we can't eat money, and not meat—just bread, bread, bread—"

And when I looked around all the men were sitting on their beds crying and tearing their hair and saying, "bread, bread, bread," over and over again. Then each tried to give me something, as if to say that even if they did not get out, perhaps their button or belt or skull cap would get back to civilization.

INTEND BUILDINGS TO LAST

Writer Decries Habit of Putting Up Temporary Structures to Serve on the Farm.

As one looks back over his life on the farm he is dismayed to see how much of it has been spent in doing things that are temporary; that must be done over and over again. For ever he is repairing fences or buildings; always there haunts him the knowledge that foundations are giving way, walls bulging and roofs leaking.

The tax on maintenance on the farm is too large, and now is the time to begin to correct this evil, the Breeders' Gazette says. For the sake of our remaining years on the farm, for the sake of the boys who will come after us, let us build for permanence, so far as we are able. Concrete makes imperishable foundations and floors. It makes cheap walls for the lower stories of farm buildings. Concrete fence posts should last a hundred years. Roofs of tile slate or galvanized iron are fairly imperishable.

In Europe the farmer inherits much more than his land; he inherits buildings so well constructed that while they are hundreds of years old they will yet endure indefinitely. The farmer adds a shed or two; he bequeaths them to his son an equipment that is comprehensive, useful and needs no especial work to keep it in repair. Let us quit "moving on" in America, but settle down on the land as though we meant to stay there, and signal that intention by beginning the era of permanent construction on the farm.

Made an Anthem of It.

It is pleasant to hear that the stern business of drilling has its light side, as well as most other things. In a certain territorial regiment, I was told, not many miles from London, one of the newest recruits was awaiting his turn on parade to be inspected. Presently to him came the youthful officer in charge. He had what is known as the varsity accent, and by those who do not know it outside the stage it may easily be mistaken for facetiousness.

The "nut" officer stooped and inspected. Then: "Ha, ha, no shave," he said. "He, he, no razor," replied the new recruit blithely, thinking that he had met a sociable soul with a pleasant way of reprimanding. The result was, of course, disastrous to the recruit. But now, when the regiment is marching and "Tipperary" is getting a little overdone, the monotony is varied by the front section suddenly calling out in full-throated unison: "Ha, ha, no shave," which is instantly replied to from the back with a stentorian roar of, "He, he, no razor!"—London Daily Mirror.

MICKIE SAYS

Tries on Shoe; Breaks Ribs.

When John Bartlow went into William Grittner's shoe store here he found a pair he liked, but they fitted a little tight, and he could not get into one.

Grittner seated himself on a low chair, took hold of an upper and bade his customer "push hard." He did, and Grittner's hold slipped, the heel of the new shoe striking him a hard blow over the heart.

When the doctor arrived he declared that Grittner had suffered three broken ribs and possibly other internal injuries, and directed him to go to bed.

"CAP" STUBBS — AND WHAT PA WOULD DO IS STILL A MYSTERY. By EDWINA

Shoes That Have Proved Popular

Here is a representative display of summer shoes that have proved popular with women who give thoughtful attention to their footwear. Except for shoes for sport wear they include styles for any sort of demand. For the street the choice between high and low shoes depends upon the weather and taste of the wearer and there is safety in providing oneself with both kinds. The high boot at the left of the picture in black kid and the oxfords at the top, also in black kid, may be had with Cuban heels for those who prefer them to French heels. But French heels are not always high and some women like them on street shoes.

At the right of the group is a pair of white glace high boots being among the styles that are favored above all others for smart dressing. Like black shoes they go well with almost any dress. But they are to be classed among expensive luxuries for they must be made of fine quality of kid in order to clean successfully—and they are always being cleaned.

In the center of the group is a pair of dressy black colonial pumps with steel buckles. These are dressy enough for any sort of wear, but below them a more brilliant pair of pumps in patent leather has buckles in sparkling jet. There is nothing more elegant than these and they are immensely well liked for afternoon and evening wear.

There is nothing more durable or satisfactory than white canvas shoes for street wear. They are more easily cleaned than other white shoes and strong linen canvas will outwear leather. For midsummer they are the coolest of shoes and probably the most economical in the long run.

Julia Bottomley

Neck Lines.

Both the high and extremely low neck line are introduced in one dinner dress. Over the slip of firmer material, which is very low cut, an overdress is used, of lace or tulle, which has the higher neck line and long sleeves. Another new type of these dresses is the gown, which is very high at the back of the neck and low in front.

FOUGHT TO DEATH OVER PIG

Possession of Porker the Cause of Sharp Skirmish Between Germans and French.

Even pigs figure sometimes in the news from the front and, as might be expected, in somewhat of a comical light. But says a Paris dispatch, they have started a tragedy also. One pig was the cause of a battle in which 30 Germans were killed and another was made to pose as a corpse to save him from the enemy.

In Bas-de-Sapt, north of Saint Dio, both French and Germans from their trenches spied out a fine fat porker in a pen, just between the two lines. Both formed parties to go out and capture the porcine delicacy, but the French reached there first. They fastened a rope about the animal's hind legs and dragged him back to their trenches with the Germans close behind.

So heated did the controversy over the pig become that it finally developed into a night battle in which the Germans were beaten, losing besides the 30 dead, a number of wounded.

The other pig had just been killed by a farmer in Flanders when it was reported that the Germans, always eager for such titbits as fresh pork, were near at hand. Determined to save his property, the quick-witted Belgian took the carcass to his room, tucked it in his bed, placed candles over the sheeted form and was praying fervently when a German soldier entered the room. The soldier tiptoed out when he discovered that he had come upon a chamber of death.

Repair Ship Mysterious.

The manufacture of a large part of machinery to replace anything broken is almost impossible in the limited space of the battleship's machine shops. But wondrous feats are performed in the repair ships that accompany fleets on stations remote from dock facilities, states a British war correspondent.

The repair ship is a huge floating smithy and machine shop packed with everything that the wit of man can concentrate into the space for treating wounded battleships. These ships employ some of the best artificers from our naval dockyards and are scattered in every quarter in which the British fleet is stationed remote from dock facilities. The Boche has nothing like them and it has been stated that no inquisitive Boche has ever been allowed to intrude his nose aboard one to investigate its mysteries and take the information to his employers of how the strange feats performed by the repair ship are effected. The repair ship is the abode of secrets.

Rides Well at Ninety-five.

Jockeys, no matter what their age, are generally referred to by those not closely in touch with racing as "the boy on Go-and-Go," but a stable "lad" still going well at ninety-five is certainly hard to beat. That is one, as shown by the following clipping from the London Sportsman of recent date: "One of the brightest and most alert of the lads riding horses around the paddock at Windsor prior to their races was old Faulkner, the grandfather of the steeplechase jockey of that name. He is ninety-five years old. His memory is of the best and so is his hearing. He has been connected with horses all his life and many a tale of the turf he can tell."

Extravagance of Economy.

"There's one form of extravagance I'll tolerate."

"What is it?"

"I don't care how much money my wife wastes on fresh flowers."

THEIR FINAL REST TOGETHER

Soldier's Intensely Pathetic Description of the Burial of Youthful Scottish Officer With His Men.

I stood one night on a certain hill that commands the firing line in an almost soundless panorama. Beside me was an officer of the Second Canadian division, who had just come out. There that night, by its white trail of iridescent light, we could trace the course of the firing line for many miles through France and Flanders.

Just to our left the line of light jutted far out, like a lone cape into the sea. "What is that jutting-out place?" my friend inquired.

"That," I answered, "is the Ypres salient, the Bloody Angle of the British line."

To mention the name of Ypres is to have one's memory awakened with a veritable kaleidoscope of pictures. That trail of light that jutted out into the night looked like a cape, and an iron cape it has been through months and years of war. But the holding of that cape has been at an awful cost, and there was not an inch along that trailing line of light that had not cost its trailing line of blood.

Just after the first gas attack in April, 1915, the whole countryside was in a panic. The roads were filled with civilians in alarm, fleeing down country, and with limbers and marching troops hastening up. I was passing through the town of Vlamerthigne, which is situated two miles beyond Ypres. In a field at the side of the road I saw a funeral party. It consisted of several pioneers, serving as grave diggers, a gray-headed Scottish major, and a corporal's guard to act as firing party.

I learned that this inconspicuous group were burying the last original officer of a battalion of the Cameron Highlanders. The dead officer was a young subaltern, and the gray-haired old major was his father, who had come from another regiment to attend the funeral of his son.

So, over in a great deep trench, where a number of the rank and file of the fallen Camerons were already laid, the body of their dead subaltern was placed. As I saw the officer and his men of the hoarse Highland regiment thus laid to rest together, I thought of the requiem of Saul and Jonathan: "They were beautiful in their lives, and in their deaths they were not divided."—Capt. Arthur Hunt Chute, in the North American Review.

Safer Inventor Fire Escape.

One of the boys aboard our navy's fleet has invented a fire escape which is similar to the rope ladders used aboard ships. His principal object was to provide a collapsible fire escape which could be compactly and conveniently arranged at the window of a dwelling. It consists of a container hinged to the sill in such a manner that by opening the window and folding the container on its hinge the metal ladder may be unfolded and dropped. When this operation is gone through, a means is automatically provided whereby the ladder is held at a distance from the walls of the building. The advantage of such precaution is obvious.

Journalistic Dilettante.

NICK ALTROCK PULLS REAL BIT OF COMEDY

Nick Altrock pulled a real piece of comedy the other day when he went in and hurled a game of ball for the Washington club. Nick came back and won his battle after a layoff of eight years. Fans who watched him pitch are amused over the incident and are laughing yet. Nick has made thousands laugh by his antics on the coaching lines, but they never imagined he could pull anything so serious as that. It was so serious in fact, for Altrock, that it was tinged with humor. It all happened because Griffith didn't have anyone to send in. "Let me pitch," said Nick. Griff hesitated a bit, then grabbed a glove and tossed it to Nick. "You're on," said the Washington manager, and Nick went in. The crowd, understanding the situation, pulled hard for this veteran to come through and he did.

RESENTED JIBES ON ATTIRE

Jack Gilligan Couldn't Stand to Have Other Players Make Fun of His New Shoes.

Jack Gilligan, a Des Moines pitcher once with the Browns, is noted in baseball circles as a swell dresser. He is fond of handsome ties, shirts and the like, and always looks as if he came directly out of a bandbox. If there's one thing he can't stand it is to be guyed about any part of his attire, especially if he thinks the kidders are in earnest.

"Once Jack told us all about a pair of shoes he was to purchase," says Pitcher Paul Musser, formerly of the White Sox and now in the army. "He said they were corkers, and prepared us for the sight.

"A few days later he came into the hotel wearing those shoes. They were dandies, all right, cost him $12, which was a big sum those days. But the boys started in on him at once.

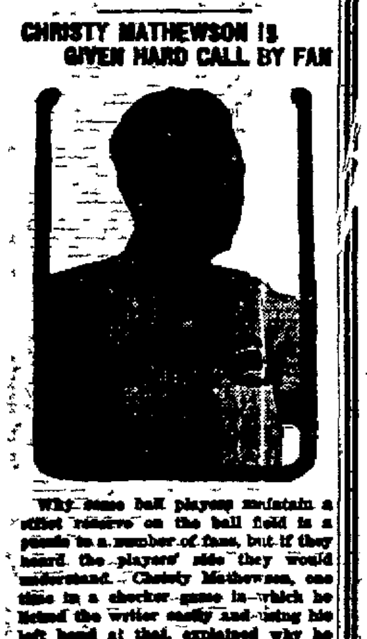

"'What size did you say they were, Jack?' asked one.

"'Eight and a half—why?'

"'Oh, nothing; except they look like twelves on you.'

"Gilligan took it in earnest. You couldn't hire him to wear them after that. And he disposed of them for $2."

CHRISTY MATHEWSON IS GIVEN HARD CALL BY FAN

Why some ball players maintain a strict reserve on the ball field is a puzzle to a number of fans, but if they heard the players' side they would understand. Christy Mathewson, one time in a checker game in which he licked the writer easily and using his left hand at that, explained why he does not always answer queries put to him by fans while he is on the ball field.

"All fans are not alike," went on Christy, "but you never know when you are going to get in wrong. For example, one time at Forbes field I was warming up near the grandstand and a fan called out to me: 'Who's going to pitch today, Matty?' I answered, 'Marquard, I believe.' Then the fan replied: 'Why, you poor hunk of cheese, Marquard can't pitch.'

"You see," continued Mathewson, "this fan called me a hunk of cheese because I had been pleasant enough to answer his question."

Supplying a Necessity.

An English policeman entered the house of a publican one morning and informed him that it would be necessary to hold an inquest there in the afternoon. Now the landlord had a great objection to anything of the kind, and said: "Oh, I can't be troubled with inquests in my house. Here, what'll you have to drink?" Robert said he'd have a drop of Scotch, which he did. "Have a cigar, too," said the host. After the consumption of two Scotches and cigars the constable said he thought he could get the inquest held somewhere else, but as he was leaving the landlord remarked: "By the way, who are they going to hold the inquest on?" "No one as I know of now," said the man in blue, "but it 'ud 'a' been you if I hadn't had them drinks [illegible]."
